Origin of the name of the historical sites in Rimini

The Clock Tower in Piazza Tre Martiri was built in the late sixteenth century in the wide open space in that Romans called the foro, or main square. It was later restored in the 1700s by Giovan Francesco Buonamici. The clock has two dials: one marks the passing of daily time, the other shows celestial time. It also shows the days and months of the year, the moon's orbit and zodiac signs.
