Origin of the name of the historical sites in Rimini
The imposing fish market opens onto Piazza Cavour. The sinuous spirals betray its Baroque origins - it was designed in 1747 by Rimini architect, Giovan Francesco Buonamici. For centuries this lively place was where fish was sold on slabs of Istrian stone. The buzz of the fishmarket has been replaced by the commotion of the young people who in the evenings populate the many bars and cafés that now surround the marketplace.
